Graphic Design Internship- Summer 2016

Who we are...

Arsenal Advertising is looking for a talented and creative graphic design intern to add to our arsenal this Summer 2016 season. We are an Austin-based, full-service branding agency that specializes in creative advertising and marketing. The design intern will work directly with our Creative Director and the creative team. They will use their knowledge of current graphic design software to concept and develop some fantastic creative.

Who you are...

From big to small, from business card to branding assignment; no matter what the project, you're willing to take it head on. You live and breathe logos and typefaces. You know the difference between Helvetica and Arial. When it comes to print and digital, you can do both. You have the ability to take an assignment through the initial concept to the finished product. You maintain a good attitude through the ups and downs of agency life, through deadlines and client feedback. The ideal candidate will be creative, focused, detail oriented and organized. We're a small agency, so be ready to be a part of the team/family.

Qualifications:

- You're creative. You have great ideas, and you'd love to share them with the world.
- Can use Illustrator, InDesign, and Photoshop like a champ.
- Are willing to put blood, sweat, and tears into creating the best end result (we'd rather our interns not bleed, perspire, and cry over our work, but we're impressed by that kind of commitment).
- Desire to learn/open to constructive feedback (we're pretty nice, we promise).
- Conceptual thinker with an open mind and a strong attention to detail.
- Positive attitude- we have a lot of fun here, but when things get tough, sometimes you just have to power through!
- Comfortable in a small agency environment and willing to grow with the company.
- Portfolio review required- we'd love to see your work!
